

Amy E. Welcher, MA,MFT

Professional Bio

Amy received a Master of Arts in Marriage and Family Therapy from the Christian Theological Seminary – Indianapolis, IN. Amy is a home based clinician. Amy feels working in the home opens her up to a wealth of knowledge about the family system.

Amy specializes in working with children with ADHD, learning disabilities, behavior problems (ODD), couples therapy, mood disorders and many other diagnosis. Amy uses family system approaches, (CBT) cognitive behavioral therapy, as well as collaborative approaches. Amy believes when there are challenges with a family member it usually brings challenges for the entire family system. Working as a team can help to improve the daily challenges and provide a better quality of life.

Amy is a Marriage and Family Therapist working towards licensure as a Marriage and Family Therapist (LMFT).
